About the Joseph Palombo Center for Neuroscience and Psychoanalytic Social Work

The mission of the Joseph Palombo Center for Neuroscience and Psychoanalytic Social Work is to maximize the effectiveness of mental health services to children, adolescents, and adults through the integration of neuroscience and psychoanalytic social work by offering educational opportunities to professionals and the lay public. Through a variety of programs that include seminars, webinars, and the dissemination of materials, the aim of the Center is to make information about current developments in the neuroscience accessible to professionals, teachers, and parents so that they may make use of that knowledge to better the lives of those whom they serve and care for.

About ICSW

Established in 1981, the Institute for Clinical Social Work is the first and only accredited, independent school in the nation to offer a doctoral program in clinical social work. Recently, the Institute advanced its mission with the introduction of a Master's Degree in Clinical Counseling and Psychotherapy, which is the only purely clinical MA program of its kind in the nation.

About the Participants

Lou Cozolino, Ph.D. has diverse clinical and research interests and holds degrees in philosophy, theology, and clinical psychology. His current interests are in the areas of the synthesis of neuroscience with psychotherapy, education, management, and leadership. He is the author of seven books: The Neuroscience of Psychotherapy, The Social Neuroscience of Education, The Neuroscience of Human Relationships, The Healthy Aging Brain, Attachment-Based Teaching, The Making of a Therapist, and Why Therapy Works. He has also authored and co-authored research articles and book chapters on child abuse, schizophrenia, language and cognition. Dr. Cozolino lectures around the world on brain development, evolution, and psychotherapy and maintains and clinical and consulting practice in Los Angeles.

Joseph Palombo, M.A. is the Founding Dean of the Institute for Clinical Social Work and the Director of its Joseph Palombo Center for Neuroscience and Psychoanalytic Social Work. He is a Faculty Member of the Child & Adolescent Psychoanalytic Therapy Program, Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis. He has contributed numerous articles to the literature and two books: Nonverbal Learning Disabilities: A Clinical Perspective, and Learning Disorders of the Self in Children and Adolescents. More recently he co-authored the textbook Guide to Psychoanalytic Developmental Theories, which is being used widely in courses on development.

Danita Tanner, MSW. is a social worker who practices at El Centro Family Health, a Federally Qualified Health Center that provides comprehensive services to underserved populations. She is a visiting professor at New Mexico Highlands University School of Social Work, and is a 4th year doctoral student at the Institute for Clinical Social Work. She is the recipient of the Elizabeth Jacobs Fund. She has a private practice in Las Vegas, NM.

Erika Schmidt, M.S.W. is Director of the Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis. She is the first social worker and first woman to be elected to this leadership position. As an ICSW faculty member, she taught the course on development and has been a consultant to students and on numerous dissertation committees. She is a child and adult psychoanalyst in private practice and works with children, adolescents and adults in psychotherapy and psychoanalysis. Her publications include papers on the history of psychoanalysis, child psychotherapy and development. She has a private practice in Hyde Park.

Lynne Tylke, Ph.D. is both an alumna and current faculty member of ICSW. Her interests are in adult attachment issues seen implicitly or nonverbally through the experience of countertransference and projective identification. These interests have been a mainstay in her teaching mainly in the distance learning PhD program of ICSW. She has in private practice in Chicago.
